Progress in Reading.

An institute has been formed by the proprietors of the Cambria Iron Works, in which is a library furnished by the company for the use of their employees free of charge. The proprietors of the works are organizing classes in mechanical drawing, civil engineering, mining chemistry, and contemporary history, and are giving throughout the winter, on mineralogy and other sciences in which iron workers are interested.

The old version, "The love of money is the root of all evil," is modified in the new version so as to read, "The love of money is the root of all kinds of evil."

THE SUN.

1882. NEW YORK. 1882.

THE SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and woman-kind of every sort; but its gentle warmth is for the good, while its potent heat is for the blustering backs of the persistently wicked.

The Sun of 1882 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way, all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commencing upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of The Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important newspaper established in this country in the dozen years past has been modeled after The Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of The Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling and interesting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before. We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with The Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of The Sun's political course. The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best material of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequal merit, for market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like The Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little! If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleased you for The Sun.

Our terms are as follows: For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6 50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7 70 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

UNCLE BEN JO'S

GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN PANACEA.

UNCLE BEN JO was born in Boston in 1800. Being a botanist, he effected many wonderful cures with roots and herbs. In 1846 he went to South America to study botany, and while there accidentally made his great discovery. The natives of this country were quite familiar with it, and had always supposed it to be a poisonous herb, which they used for the sole purpose of keeping snakes away from their tents or houses. This they did by laying it in a circle about the same at a proper distance off. This herb, Uncle J., as well as the natives, considered a very obnoxious and poisonous one, and when given and fresh it threw off a very disagreeable and repulsive odor. The herb grows about two feet high, and about eight inches of the top part of its stalk is leafless, and this part loops over and hangs downward perpendicularly, and from its curved neck to its end it increases in size, and on the end of the same is a large, burly-looking ball, which stalk and ball, in the hanging position, looks precisely like the tongue of a bell. Hence Uncle J. named it the Bell Tongue Plant. In South America this herb is only found in the extreme interior of the country, and the natives there call it "Ben Jo." It is a wonderful cure of kidney and liver diseases, also, dyspepsia, neuralgia and rheumatism. We have a whole library full of testimonials. Sold by OSBURN & SHOEMAKER, Reno, Nev.

AN EASTERN PAPER ON GITEAU.

The Chicago Tribune's Washington correspondent's observations of the Giteau trial are condensed in its head lines—"Always audacity—the assassin's astonishing reliance on Danton's dog—infinitesimal egotism—horrible blasphemy, and cold logical cunning. Steady and persistent attack of the great cross-examiner. Intermittent rage of the wretch at the mention of the facts of the murder. A fury shown that would soon inspire the removal of Judge Porter. The feelings of the hideous hypocrite wounded by a recurrence of sacred subjects. Charles Julius Giteau is now rashly driving nails in his coffin. His brain works with remarkable accuracy. The experts said to be fast abandoning the idea of any aberration whatever."

THE POPULATION OF IRELAND.

The London Times, commenting on affairs in Ireland, attempts to aggravate the enormity of the disaffection by pointing out that "the whole Irish people, who forty years ago formed one third of the population of the kingdom, is now only one-seventh." There may be some force in this argument, but if so it strikes the wrong way; for it is certainly no compliment to any government to prove that its style of legislation has thinned out its population in such an enormous extent in four decades. The present remedial measures, sound and liberal as they may be, appear to have been adopted too late for any great service to the Irish race.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Judah P. Benjamin, who was the rebel Secretary of State when the Confederate bonds was issued, says there is no money on deposit in England or elsewhere to the credit of the Confederate States, and the bonds that are being brought up in this country can have no possible value.

The Atlanta Constitution has found something to be happy over. Hear it: "There are not enough people in Georgia to violate all the laws on our statute books."

The Burlingame Treaty Overthrows a State Law.

PORTLAND, Or., December 3. The Supreme Court this morning affirmed the decision of Judge Stott, in the State Circuit Court, in the case of Perry G. Baker vs. the city of Portland. Baker was a street contractor, and in direct violation of an act of the Legislature prohibiting the employment of Chinese on the public works, did have work done by Chinamen. The City resisted payment on the grounds that Baker not only had violated the State law, but also his bond, in which he agreed not to employ Chinese. Judge Stott decided in favor of Baker, who contested it on the ground that the State law was not in accordance with the Burlingame treaty.

Smallpox in Washington Territory.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Dec. 3. The Oregonian's Pendleton special says: We have received no mail from Heppner for ten days, as the citizens have placed the town in quarantine. A letter from a prominent citizen says: There are 31 cases of smallpox within the town limits and quite a number in the immediate vicinity. Two deaths have occurred.

Matters in the War Department.

WASHINGTON, December 3. The report of the Secretary of War recommends an increase of the army to 30,000, as Sherman suggests. Attention is given to coast defenses, which are regarded by the Secretary as very essential. The active expenditures of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1881, were $42,122,000; appropriations for 1882 were $44,869,000.

AN IMPUDENT ASSASSIN.

The Murderer Cornered—Choice Exhibition of His Impudence—He has Felt Remorse—His Inspiration Explained out of His own Mouth.

WASHINGTON, December 3.

After recess yesterday, Giteau's cross examination was addressed to occurrences of the night before the shooting, when the Prisoner followed the President and Blaine. The prisoner stated that he had not shot that night because it was hot and sultry. Question:—

"Do you think it would make you hotter to pull the trigger," inquired Porter, raising his arm and making the motion of shooting with a pistol. Prisoner, contemptuously—"Oh, don't put on so much style with that trigger."

Porter having again questioned the prisoner as to his pistol practice prior to the shooting, the latter turned to the Court and said: "Your Honor, I want to know if it is necessary for Judge Porter to go through this business again. I don't see the pertinency of this kind of talk at all, and I ask protection of the Court. If you have any new question to solve, I am willing. I object to going over this ground again. If you have any new ideas you want to show and elucidate, I will assist you."

Porter then called prisoner's attention to the fact that he had made arrangements to go to jail, and asked why he had done so. Prisoner—"I was afraid of being mobbed before I could explain my views to the people. They would say I was a disappointed office seeker, and would hang me up. That was the only possible motive they could conceive."

Porter then asked some questions as to the occurrence on the 18th of June, when the prisoner refrained from shooting the President on account of Mrs. Garfield's presence, and finally asked, "If Mrs. Garfield had been with the President on July 2nd would you have shot him?"

"No; I should not have shot him in her presence. I did not know what effect it might have on her."

Q—Then it depended entirely on your will?

A—It depended on whether I had a suitable opportunity.

BRAZEN IMPUDENCE.

Porter asked why he would not have shot in Mrs. Garfield's presence. Prisoner—"If your head is so thick that you can't get the idea, I won't try to pound it in. Why do you ask me your questions in a mean sickly sort of a way?"

Porter pressed his question, whereupon the prisoner picked up a paper and adjusting his eye glasses, began to read the paper, paying no attention to the Council.

Porter—What are you reading? Prisoner (without raising his eyes)—"I am glancing over the New York Herald."

Porter—Don't you think the time of this Court and Jury is of some value?

Prisoner—Not in the way you are interrogating this matter. It has been discussed and repeated over and over again. (Here the prisoner settled himself back in his chair to read)

Scoville objected that the counsel was going over the same ground four times.

Porter—I would like to hear what he said on the subject.

Prisoner—You must be a very stupid man. The papers are full of it. The papers are full of my answers.

Porter—What were your answers? Prisoner—I decline to answer.

Porter—I suppose you have no objection to answering what you did on the day you killed him.

ASSASSINATION IN FULL DRESS.

Prisoner then gave an account of his actions on the morning of July 2. He had slept the previous night at Rigg's House, had risen early and sat in Lafayette park some time before breakfast; after breakfast he went to his room and put his revolver in his pocket. A little before 9 o'clock he went to the depot and had his boots blacked.

Porter—Did you want to be in full dress when you killed him?

Prisoner (drawingly)—No, I didn't want to be in full dress. I don't want to be interrupted.

Porter—And I don't want to be interrupted.

Prisoner—Then keep quiet.

Prisoner then continued with his story: Blaine and the President drove up in a single-horse carriage; Blaine got out on one side of the carriage and Garfield out on the other. They walked up to the depot and passed within a few feet of prisoner, who drew his weapon and fired twice and hit him once.

Question—You shot him in the back?

Answer—I did not fire at any particular place.

than about breaking the leg of that puppy dog?

Answer—I have no conception of it as murder or killing.

Question—And you feel no remorse?

Answer—(In a low and almost inaudible voice.) Of course I feel remorse so far as my personal feelings are concerned. I feel remorse as much as any man and regret the necessity of the act, but (raising his voice)

Mr. Porter—"The cross-examination is closed—"But," continued the prisoner, excitedly, "My duty to the Lord and the American people overcame my personal feelings. If the Lord had not inspired that act, it would not have been done."

Prisoner was conducted, looking completely worn out, to his usual seat beside his counsel.

Giteau, writhing under the tremendous force of Judge Porter's question, saw the terrible effect of his confession. During all these months one part of his defense has been to insist to all that he never had a single sentiment of remorse. During this cross-examination he has said a dozen times to Judge Porter's terrible questions that his mind was a blank upon this subject. To all the experts who have called upon him during these weeks he has insisted with gleeful pertinacity that a thought of remorse never came to his mind.

Judge Porter made it clear that Giteau was able to control the Divine presence on the day Mrs. Garfield came to the depot with the President, and emphasized this fact, which has such an important bearing upon the question of responsibility. The cross-examination was eminently successful. It lifted the mask, showed the plot to murder the President was premeditated, deliberate and the result of malice and revenge. The prisoner felt it keenly. Porter broke down the wonderful, quick, and supple witness.

To-day's Proceedings.

Emory A. Storrs, Chicago, knew Giteau in that city by sight as a young lawyer. Saw him perhaps a dozen times at the National Republican rooms, New York. During the last Presidential campaign the prisoner came up to him gleefully and patting him on the shoulder, said: "You are on the right track."

Witness never saw Giteau doing anything at the Committee rooms, other than reading papers. In April saw prisoner at Washington; he said he was going to have the Austrian Mission. Witness told him the place was an important one, and in Blaine's line, and that he (Blaine) was a knowing politician. Prisoner replied he was solid with Blaine. Witness' impression was Giteau had an illy balanced mind. In common parlance, he did not have good common sense.

Upon cross-examination witness said—Never saw anything in Giteau to indicate that he could not distinguish between right and wrong, guilt and innocence, or to indicate that he would not be responsible for crime. Scoville noted several exceptions to the rulings of Judge Cox in favor of admission of these replies in evidence. They created quite a stir in the court-room, and seemed to stagger those about the defense table.

The sister of the prisoner was particularly affected, and in tones distinctly caught by the reporter, said: "He has injured himself, that is all there is about it."

Senator David Davis was sworn and Scoville proceeded to question him on political philosophy. The Senator was non-committal on everything, continually demurred to the line of proceeding and was finally excused.

Bailey, the District Attorney's stenographer, was put upon the stand, and Giteau became at once excited. He charged witness with coming to him as a New York Herald reporter, and tricking him into an interview, notes of which were used by the District Attorney. Bailey afterwards made up a report from his notes for the New York Herald, and Giteau wanted to know what he received for it. It was finally brought out that Bailey had been given $500.

Scoville has made a sensation by summoning David Davis, Speaker Randall, Senator Bayard and President Arthur.

Duties of Bank Directors.

WASHINGTON, December 3. The Comptroller of Currency in his annual report, says the recent failure of the Merchants Bank in Newark has called attention of the public to the duties of Bank Directors and of Examiners of National Banks. The duties of the Board of Directors are plainly defined, and however innocent they may be of any intention to do wrong, they are responsible for the safety of funds committed to their care. If it can be shown that any of them had notice of illegal transactions, it is a serious question whether they are not legally bound to make good the loss which may occur, and it is a question whether they are not also liable for losses which may occur from neglect of duty, even without notice. Examinations should be periodically made by a competent committee selected from the Board of Directors.

What Mackey Says of the Comstock.

NEW YORK, December 3. John W. Mackey is in town, and may be seen daily at the Bank of Nevada. He sails for Europe on the 14th instant. He says there is nothing for him to do in this country and he might as well enjoy himself abroad.

There were no developments in the Comstock mines. The company has lost about $4,000,000 in the last two years, and there was nothing in view at present of sufficient importance to keep him in California.

Scene in the Giteau Trial.

WASHINGTON, December 2. Giteau had no notion of submitting to the lawyer any further than he pleased. Porter would frequently shock the assassin with questions apparently without connection, and yet evidently of great importance. Thus he suddenly interrupted some of the questions bearing on the Paris Consultation with the inquiry:

"Do you believe in temptation?"

Giteau did not know what to say. He looked downward and thought a moment, and repeated: "in temptation." "Yes," said Judge Porter. Giteau hesitated a moment longer, and then said: "I am not prepared to answer that."

"You are not?" said Judge Porter, significantly.

"No," replied the witness. "It has no relevancy in this case."

American Wines and Spirits.

WASHINGTON, December 3. The Department of State is in receipt of a communication from the Consul at Bordeaux relative to an exhibition of agricultural and industrial products, to be held at Bordeaux from June 1 to November 1, 1882. This exhibition is regarded as of especial interest to American vine-growers and distillers, as from the ravages of phylloxera in the most productive vine-growing districts of Europe, there are strong probabilities of an important market being created for American wines and spirits.

The Speakership—Keller Nominated.

WASHINGTON, December 3. There is a sort of combination between Kaason and Hisecock, looking to the nomination of Kaason, to beat Keller if the latter runs ahead of Hisecock.

At a late hour last night it was reported that 14 of the 18 Pennsylvania members had been won over to Keller. On the sixteenth ballot in the Republican caucus, today, Keller of Ohio was nominated for Speaker of the House.

Death in the Flames.

WINTERSET, Iowa, Dec. 3. The dwelling of J. J. Furrow, three miles southwest of here, was burned last night at midnight. Three girls sleeping up stairs, aged 9, 12, and 17, were burned to death. The bodies were completely charred. The children were awakened, but were afraid to jump.

A Bank Thief Convicted.

JERSEY CITY, December 3. John Hillyard, President of the Mechanics' Bank, suspended November 7th, has been convicted of conspiracy to defraud and sentenced to eighteen months in the States Prison. Leey, one of the Directors was fined $500. Hillyard's sentence was applauded. He broke down and his wife fainted.

A Mysterious Case.

DEARBORN, Mich., December 3. The jury acquitted Mrs. Barnard on her trial for the murder of Rev. E. Curtis' wife, by setting fire to her clothes. The case has been very mysterious.

The Kansas Bank Thieves.

CALDWELL, KANSAS, Dec. 3. The excitement over the failure of the banks is subsiding. Danford's wife is now with him. It is expected matters will be satisfactorily arranged shortly.

FOREIGN.

London Locals.

LONDON, December 3. African Bank shares are weaker on reported heavy failures at the Cape. An attempt was made to blow up the lodge of a house belonging to a gentleman named Crossin. Nearly the whole roof and gables were blown away. The outrage is attributed to the feeling created by evictions on his property.

Colonel Stanley, a retired officer and relation of the late Dean Stanley, suicided at Windsor to-day.

Ireland's Woes.

DUBLIN, December 3. At the inquest at Belmullet in the case of Mary Deane, the second victim of the recent riots, two witnesses swore they saw Constable Sullivan deliberately fire after the order to cease firing had been given. Sullivan maintained that he never once fired. The Inspector and head constable deposed that Sullivan's rifle was found perfectly clean. The jury, nevertheless, returned a verdict of murder against him. The Crown solicitor said the verdict would be quashed in the Court, of Queen's Bench.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

TO THE PUBLIC.

Von Below wants to make a trip through Germany this season with the orchestra of the Grand Duke of Meiningen, playing all of Beethoven's Symphonies from memory. He believes that if the orchestra is relieved from the necessity of keeping one eye on the music it will be better able to attend to his conducting.

Dr. Tanner and other enterprising scientists seem to have demonstrated that it is possible for a man to live without food. If some genius will show that he can also live without sleep, he will have solved the other hard problem in newspaper life.

Microscopic observations prove that decay is due to the action of minute germs, that develop and feed upon animal and vegetable structures. Ozone, applied by the Penicillin method, relieves and destroys these germs at once and thus preserves. At our office in Cincinnati can be seen almost every article that can be thought of, preserved by this process, and every visitor is welcome to examine, taste, smell, take away with him, and test in every way the merits of Ozone as a preservative. We will also preserve, free of charge, any article that is brought or sent prepaid to us, and return it to the sender, for him to keep and test.

FRESH MEATS, such as beef, mutton, veal, poultry, game, fish, etc., preserved by this method, can be shipped to Europe, subjected to atmospheric changes and return to this country in a state of perfect preservation.
EGGS can be treated at a cost of less than one dollar a thousand dozen, and be kept in an ordinary room six months or more, thoroughly preserved; the yolk held in its normal condition, and the eggs as fresh and perfect as when first laid. The advantage in selling as strictly "choice." The advantage in preserving eggs is readily seen; there are no small, and by holding them, can be sold at an advance of from one hundred to three hundred per cent. One man, with this method, can preserve 5,000 dozen a day.

OZONE
A New Process for Preserving all Perishable Articles, Animal and Vegetable, from Fermentation and Putrefaction, Retaining their Color and Flavor.

"OZONE—Purified air, active state of oxygen."—Webster.
This Preservative is not a liquid, pickle, or any of the old and exploded processes, but is simply and purely OZONE, as produced and applied by an entirely new process. Ozone is the antiseptic principle of every substance, and possesses the power to preserve animal and vegetable structures from decay.
There is nothing on the face of the earth liable to decay or spoil which Ozone, the new preservative, will not preserve for all time in a perfectly fresh and palatable condition.
The value of Ozone as a natural preserver has been known to our able chemists for years, but until now, no means of producing it in a practical, inexpensive, and simple manner have been discovered.
Microscopic observations prove that decay is due to the action of minute germs, that develop and feed upon animal and vegetable structures. Ozone, applied by the Penicillin method, relieves and destroys these germs at once and thus preserves. At our office in Cincinnati can be seen almost every article that can be thought of, preserved by this process, and every visitor is welcome to examine, taste, smell, take away with him, and test in every way the merits of Ozone as a preservative. We will also preserve, free of charge, any article that is brought or sent prepaid to us, and return it to the sender, for him to keep and test.
